MR. HI HENRY
The Famous Cornet Virtuoso.

Announcement Event of the Season.

The amusement event of the season will be the appearance of Hi Henry's Big City Minstrels at the Emporium opera nouse, on Wednesday, Feb. 27. This attraction is one of the largest and most expensive traveling, having appeared in all the larger cities east and west, the companr numbers nearly a half hundred people, they seldom play the smaller cities but occasionally have a spare date in making their big jump as is the case here they play a small city on the railroad line they are enroute so they do not have to transfer their special cars. The company comes enroute to Willamsport and will give the same identical performance that is seen in any of the larger cities, as they carry two sets of scenery, one for the smaller houses, which will be used here. They will arrive in their special train of palace coaches, and give a street parade at noon, with "Uncle Sam" as a mounted bugler, and Hi Henry in his new automobile speedster, with their big hand some St. Bernard dog "Goldie." At 8:15 their curtain will raise and one of the grandest, most gorgeous first parts ever seen on any stage; a fanciful presentation of the palace of Aladin from the Arabian Nights. The scene is a glitter of pearl and gold with prismatic lights, elegant costumes, twentieth century commedians, superb cultivated singers and grand double orchestra, offering the latest ballads and comic songs and bon mots of wit. Get your tickets at Lloyd's book store.

Railroad Jack.

Prof. Watson, the great pysiologist, long maintained with Darwin that the human family had descended from the monkey, he went further than Darwin in claiming that our language also came from the same source. In order to prove his theory, Prof. Watlon organized an expedition which took him into the heart of the jungle of Africa, where he could watch and listen to the animals at his leisure. He noticed that at certain hours of the day the monkeys and gorillas would congregate in large numbers and the chattering that would take place amomg them was deafening. One day in particular there seemed to be more excitement than usual among them. The professor thought that at last his dream was to be realized, and he thought he could distinguish words that were intelligible. There was a momentary lull in the proceedings and all eyes were centered on a big gorilla who seemed to be looked upon as a leader. They listened intently, but the least interested spector was the professor. Imagine his astonishment when these words sang out from the mouth of the big gorilla. Go and see Railroad Jack at the Emporium opera house, Feb. 25. Prices, 25c 35c and 50c

Railroad Jack.

It is an old saying and oft repeated, "He who laughs last laughs best," it is a saying which can be applied to most anything connected with human nature but the performance of "Railroad Jack" which will be given at Emporium Opera House, Feb. 25, it it especially suited. You have seen plays which you have enjoyed, plays which have amused you, but it was left to the management of "Railroad Jack" to present a piece which would give the public the best laugh. In witnessing a performance of "Railroad Jack" the most skeptical persons become believers in real humor and laugh as they never laughed before, the most hard hearted gives way before pathos which cannot help but appeal to him.

There are not many chances placed in the way of the theatre-goer to view a play which has all the merits of a teacher, a physician and an outing. So, as Caesar said, as he was about to cross the Rubicon, "It's up to you" to see the greatest play presented in many years.

Railroad Jack will have but a short stay, so make the best of your opportunities and secure your tickets early

Bathing a Baby.

Many fathers stand aloof from the common domestic duties, not because they are so busy or because they are not willing, but because of ignorance.

How many men are there who would not gladly drop their business at any time and stay home and give the baby his bath, if they only know how!

Yet in reality it is much simpler than it seems. Fill the bathtub full of any good water, first carefully removing all germs. Put your elbow in occasionally to see if it is the right temperature. If ice forms on your elbow you may know the water it is to cold. If there are blisters then it is to warm. Be moderate in all things.

Take the baby firmly by both feet and shake him loose from his flannel moorings, until you begin to see safety pins ahead. Then remove the safety pins with gas nippers, and unroll until the baby looms into sight.

Now, having put on your rubber coat, put one hand firmly under the baby's chest and the other on his back, and launch him on the still waters. When he has kicked all the water out of the bathtub, renew as before.

Be careful, while you are manipulating the baby, to keep him face down. Otherwise you would not be able to put water anywhere else but in his mouth.—Tom Masson in the March Delineator.

This is Worth Saving.

The following simple home-made mixture is said to relieve any form of Rheumatism or backache, also cleanse and strengthen the Kidneys and Bladder, overcoming all urinary disorders, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take in tea spoonful doses after meals and at bedtime.

A well-know authority states that these ingredients are mainly of vegetable extraction, and harmless to use, and can be obtained at small cost from any good prescription pharmacy. Those who think they have kidney trouble or suffer with lame back or weak bladder or Rheumatism, should give this prescription a trial, as no harm can possibly follow its use and is said to do wonders for some people.

Washington as a General.

An exceedingly interesting article by Professor Sloane, of Columbia, appears in the current number of the Century, entitled, "Von Moltke's Estimate of Washington as a Strategist." From Washington's own time there has been a tendency on the part of many to depreciate him as a military leader. The comparative smallness of the armias engaged in the Revolutionary campaigns has tended to make the struggle appear petty in the eyes of Europeans, and since the Civil War, in our own eyes as well. Napoleon, while conceding Washington's skill, spoke of the Revolutionary struggle as a war between picket lines. Another circumstance which has militated against Washington's fame as a general is the fact that he never won a pitched battle. He was defeated at Long Island and Brandywine, and failed at Freehold. Still another factor tending to obscure his military fame was his own love of peace and abhorrence of war. His career was not that of a military conqueror or of a professional soldier. His fame as patriot and as Father of his country greatly overshadows his fame as a sóldier.

Nevertheless we find so great an authority as Von Moltke pronouncing Washington one of the world's very greatest strategists. His flight through the Jerseys and across the Delaware, with the consequent scattering of the British forces along the line of pursuit and up and down the Delaware; his midnight crossing back to Trenton and surprise of Rahl; his second return to the Jerseys, drawing Cornwallis down to the Assunpink, and then by a rapid nocturnal march surprising and defeating the British at Princeton, thus compelling the entire British pursuit to retire to the vicinity of New York; all these according to Von Moltke, were feats which only a consummate strategist could achieve.

It was the opinion of Von Moltke, in which he is supported by Professor Sloane, that the victory at Princeton really determined the success of the struggle for independence. Professor Sloane seems to be of the opinion that the French alliance was not only unnecessary, but actually served to prolong the war. The heart of England was never in the attempt to coerce the Colonies. The attitude of such men as Chatham and Burke is well known. Many of the foremost leaders in the army and navy positively refused to serve against the Colonies. Desertions from the British army in America were frequent. Even Sir William Howe, whose dilatory movements played into the hands of Washington, was accused of being in secret sympathy with the Americans. Altogether the state of public sentiment in England was such that had it not been for the French alliance, England would probably have accepted the defeat at Princeton as final and have conceded the independence of America early in 1777. But when once the struggle had become identified in the British mind with a war with France, the only result could be a determination to prolong the fight. From time immemorial England and France were traditional enemies, and the thought of yielding anything at the dictation of Nick Frog could never find lodgment in the breast of John Bull After the American alliance with France, even Chatham gave his voice for prolonging the war. When in 1783 England finally conceded the independence of America, it was only after she had won such successes from France in other parts of the world as to rob Yorktown of its sting as being in part a victory of French arms.

American independence was really won without the aid of France. Not Yorktown, but Princeton, was the decisive field. The laurels of that brilliant winter campaign belong to the brow of Washington alone.

Admitted to Supreme Court.

Fred Arn Johnson, son of Hon. J. C. Johnson has been admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, having passed the examination before the state board of law examiners, the hardest ordeal for an attorney to go through. He is possibly the first attorney from the northern tier counties to run the gauntlet and has every reason to be proud. His tutor who coached him for the examination, in a letter to Mr. Johnson says: "I take great pleasure in advising you that notice was received at my office this a m., (Feb. 16th), to the effect that your son, Mr. Fred A. Johnson, has been successful and has passed the law examinations held in this city last December. I congratulate both you and him. I desire to take this occasion to say that in my opinion your son has a good, solid, substantial understanding of a great body of the law. I admired his method of thought greatly and am sure that it will produce success of a high order in the profession" Fred is certainly to be congratulated upon the fight he made to perfect his studies and will, when he returns home to remain permanently, which will be shortly, we feel sure his friends will extend congratulations. Hon. J. C. Johnson has been untiring in his effors to fit his son to follow his footsteps, is proud of his son's success, and he has every reason to be. The PRESS rejoices when a Cameron county young man climbs the ladder of fame and hastens to congratulate our young friend.

Fearful Wreck.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—Thirty persons were killed instantly and 150 injured in a disaster that overtook an electric train on the Harlem division of the New York Central at 205th street and woodlawn road. Three of the four passenger coaches were dragged 700 feet on their sides, and the single passenger coach that held to the track was ripped almost through its entire length by the up turned end of a rail that cut like a knife.

The three over turned coaches and a baggage car were entirely demolished. The speed of the train was so great that it was impossible to stop after the first shock until 1,200 feet had been covered. Dead and dying were hurled through windows as the ears were dragged bumping over the scattered ties and twisted rails. Two hours after the wreck three unconscious men were found in a dark hollow thirty feet from the track. Mangled bodies and scores of groaning injured were picked up along both sides of the track for a distance of almost a quarter of a mile.

One of the Victims.

Moses Fountain, grand-son of Mrs. Margaret Fountain, of this place, was one of the victims of the late steamer accident on Feb. 11th. Young Fountain, aged 22 years, was employed on the steamer Larchmont and swam ashore at Block Island, where he was frozen to death. His father found his remains at Providence, R. I., and took them to his home at Farmsville, Va., the funeral taking place on Sunday last. Mrs. Moses Johnson, of this place, attended the funeral, her mother being too feeble to go.

CANADA'S GOOD TIMES.

The Immigration During 1906 Was 216,000.

While it is well to heed every word of caution from the leaders in commerce and finance and to avoid all speculative ventures that lack a solid business foundation, it is clearly evident that there is no conspicuous weak spot in Canada's present era of prosperity. The Toronto Globe says: "The Dominion has in a commercial sense plenty of money, and our leading financial institutions are in a position to lend freely in the United States. The chief productive enterprises of Canada are not buoyed up by an era of dangerous speculation, but are following substantial business methods and finding safe and continuous markets for their goods. We are not bolstering up any industries by extensive export bonuses that must impoverish the people as a whole, and ultimately lead to collapse through the failure of the artificial aid. There is no extreme protection in Canada such as would create great fortunes for a few at the expense of the general public and lead to disruption and catastrophe. The prosperity of Canada has no artificial foundation being based on a healthy and substantial expansion of trade and industry, with a proportionate extension of productive settlement to new areas.

It is true that we are borrowing extensively for railway construction, but every line will bring new territory within the limits of profitable occupation, and will create prosperous settlements to bear the burdens and repay the outlay. We are not exhausting mineral resources, for it is quite reasonable to assume that, although mineral wealth is never permanent, ours will during the measurable future develop a far greater productive capacity than at present. Our timber wealth can be made continuous by a judicious policy. And agriculture, the real foundation of our prosperity, is expanding with every new expenditure on railway construction. We are not in the flush of a railway mania that could bring its punishment through the useless duplication of lines. The gigantic railway enterprises that now stimulate every line of business in Canada will create a new Dominion, and thus render easy the heavy burdens of debt now freely assumed. Canada's era of prosperity has been unprecedented, but there is no sign of weakness and no cause for lack of confidence. While our growth is normal and healthy, we need have no alarm at its rapidity." This article might have gone on to relate the great growth that is taking place in Central Canada, where thousands of Americans have made their homes during the past few years. The past calendar year has given to Canada by importation an addition of 216,000 to its population. Of this the United States contributed 63,781. The agents of the Canadian government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere, say that this number will be largely increased during 1907.

A Precious Heritage.

Sweetness of temper is a precious heritage. It gives beauty to everything. It keeps its windows open towards the spice country, and fills the home with perpetual delight. The fortunate possessor of a sunny soul is God's evangel in a dark world. He is a living Gospel, which no one will ever repudiate, and the blessedness of which all men will appreciate. The body will grow old and the smooth brow will be furrowed, but a happy disposition is an aureole to the grey crown of age. Blessed is he whose life looks out upon the land of Beulah, and whose soul is responsive to the outlying vision."—Exchange.

AN EVENTFUL LIFE.

A Brief Sketch of a Great Physician and Surgeon.

The widely known Dr. David Kennedy was graduated from the medical department of Columbia University in 1860; for three years resident surgeon in the Saterlee U. S. Army Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa.; during the Civil War was President of the Examining Board for Invalid Soldiers, and acknowledged one of the most successful surgeons in the Government service; member of the Ulster County Medical Society and other scientific and medical associations; for over thirty-five years in active practice of medicine and surgery in Rondout, N. Y., becoming one of the leading surgeons of the Hudson River Valley, his great ability and skill being undisputed, and his reputation extending from New York to neighboring states. He was a New York Presidential Elector in 1892, Mayor of his city for two terms and occupied many other public and private positions of trust and honor.

It is interesting to learn that in the early days of his large practice he employed a prescription that he termed his "favorite remedy" because it was invariably successful in the treatment of the various cases coming under his care, where a preparation was indicated for the Kidneys, Liver or Blood. In 1875 the demand for this medicine was so great that he decided to place it before the public, and from that time Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy (as it has since been known) has become one of our standard family remedies. The business soon grew to immense proportions and the large laboratories and offices in Rondout stand as positive proof of its wonderful success, due to absolute merit, aided by systematic judicious and honest advertising.

The strong point about Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is that its cures are permanent, and it will be our pleasure, in subsequent issues of this paper, to print specific instances of this convincing feature.

It is proper to add here that Favorite Remedy is not a "patent" or "secret" medicine, since its composition is given upon request, and it is not a "cure all." It has cured many cases of Kidney, Liver and Blood troubles (and associated ailments) which have been practically abandoned by physicians. It is sold in over 40,000 drug stores in this country at only $1.00 a bottle, or the manufacturers will send it direct and prepay charges if a druggist is not handy. Every year Dr. David Kennedy's Sons, Rondout, N. Y., mail millions of free medical booklets and sample bottle (to any one writing for them) to all parts of the world, this being one of their methods of advertising the merit of this valuable remedy.

Expensive City to Live In.

High prices continue to rule in Dawson City, which is probably the most expensive town in the world. It is a thriving place with a population of over 8,000, with warehouses, churches, banks, electric lights, wholesale and retail stores and two up-to-date newspapers. The newspapers themselves are worthy of consideration in the light of expense, for they cost 25 cents a copy. At this time of the year three eggs ordered in a restaurant cost $1.50, while a caribou steak costs one dollar. Beer is worth one dollar a bottle and champagne $10.50 a quart.

Of Interest to Women.

Every woman naturally should be healthy and strong, but a great many women, unfortunately, are not, owing to the unnatural condition of the lives we lead. Headache, backache and a general tired condition are prevalent amongst the women of to-day, and to relieve these conditions women rush to the druggists for a bottle of some preparation supposed to be particularly for them, and containing—nobody knows what. If they would just get a box of Brandreth's Pills, and take them regularly every night for a time, all their trouble would disappear, as these pills regulate the organs of the feminine system. The same dose always has the same effect, no matter how long they are used.

Brandreth's pills have been in use for over a century, and are for sale everywhere, plain or sugar-coated.

English Tongue-Twisters.

The English language has its own peculiar terrors. Who would not pity the foreigner attempting to understand such sentences as "It was put in case in case it should rain." "The first one won one sovereign." "I will come by-and-by and buy a bicycle?" And how could you expect a German to get at the real meaning of the metaphors in the following sentence—"Being unhorsed he dogged his man and soon had him cowed?"

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. MT. VERNON AS IT IS TO-DAY

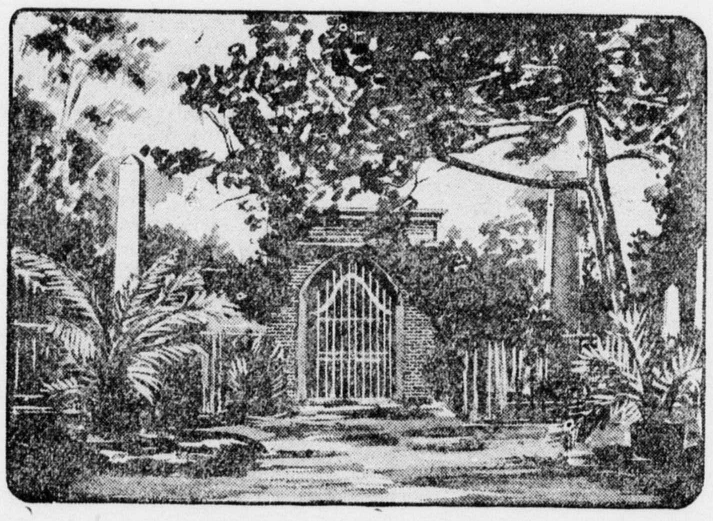
Mount Vernon as It Now Appears.

To come upon Mount Vernon when the sunlight floods the long-tiled gallery, and the guards lazily stretch their legs and yawn at your approach; to watch the blue smoke curling from the chimneys, and see the barn-yard fowls cluck noisily about and then flap their wings and run, is almost to see the old place as when Washington met his friends half way down the drive, or saluted them from afar. This is as you find it when you are set down like a duck in a puddle, right on the edge of the most historic spot in America.

You pass along in the shadow of the squat brick wall, topped off with ornamental pickets, past the higher red brick wall mottled with patches of whitewash and topped off with its moss-grown coping, that winds along up the hill like a huge snake, over which the red roofs show in utter defiance of its great landlord's effort to hide their every-day existence and homely suggestions. While you ponder why Washington's back door was his front door, and prepare to salute the shades of his greatness, a man with a camera and a "taking" expression whirls into view, and before you know it yours is one of the strange faces that looks out from the gallery, all wondering, even though knowing, what he is going to do. But it's of no use to fret. Like trouble, he is ever with you—thicker than dandelions on a summer green. If he divides the honors with any one, it's with the woman who wants a souvenir of General Washington.



Tomb of Washington in Summer Time.

Here in the banquet room, on the spot where Lafayette, Rochambeau, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe, and the Artists Houdon, Peale and Trumbull, besides many great revolutionary generals, dined, the women hold their executive sessions. The beautiful silver mounted mirror that adorned Washington's banquet board is removed, and upon the table they write of the progress that saved the old house from ruin. To the Regents of the Mount Vernon association, who come once each springtime and actually live, eat, and drink, and sleep under the famous old roof, does the place owe its air of homelike comfort, as well as its preservation.

It is the banquet room that was prepared for the first time by the hands of Lafayette and a company of French noblemen, who chanced to be house guests. The story runs that a ball was to be given, and the imported paper had arrived, but no paperhangers. Mrs. Washington mourned, but the chivalrous Lafayette, always ready to do or die, consoled her—he was equal to the emergency, and he and his friends hung the paper, assisted by the general and his household. In this historic room, the women are literally surrounded by the priceless treasures that they have collected from the fading past for the benefit of future generations. The Washington that Rembrandt Peale pictures, facing the difficulties of Yorktown, glorifies the side of the room, while from a mahogany cabinet comes a substantial suggestion of the convivial cheer that went around the festive board through the medium of the ponderous punch bowl, or the quaintly cut champagne glasses. Many a trifle that tells of the love of feminine finery fills another case—rare bits of lace, miniatures, silver and china—a delicious bit of feminine folly woven indelibly into the meshes of all time.

It does seem a bit ghastly to turn in with the ghosts of the great, upon the bed where Washington died, but it has been done; and, too, where Lafayette rested. On the quaint little dressing case, where reposed his august cue, now, each springtime, lies a riotous mass of modern hairpins and feminine furbelows. The sitting room of Nellie Custis, that of Martha Washington, the family dining room and the library, each with its wealth of heirlooms, tells of the painstaking care and research of many years. In these rooms the Regents sleep, and work, and live, and imbue themselves with the spirit of the Washingtons.

The attendants, for the most part, are more replete with new uniforms than historical information, but there is reason for knowing that it was in the dear old library that Washington received the official announcement of his election as president of the United States. There are 17 closets in three sides of this room—curious little closets within closets, none perceptible to the passing traveler, but cleverly concealed as a part of the walls and woodwork.

You must wade knee deep through cherry tokens to reach the old conservatory, with the quaint, rambling servants' quarters tucked away under the eaves on each side, while sloping roofs and whitewashed walls remind one somehow of Bobbie Burns.

It is curious how the American traveler prefers to pilfer his historic treasures rather than to pay a trifle for them. The old gardener thinks this is the case, and it is only by the greatest vigilance that he has for so many years preserved the historic outline of the garden as originally planted and laid off by Washington. Again, Mrs. Leiter's generosity and fine judgment are shown, for she is chairman of the committee on grounds and shrubs, as well as interested in the garden and greenhouse. Many a rare plant finds its way to Mount Vernon through her efforts. The gardens are maintained at an expense of over $2,000, but between $600 and $700 of this amount is realized from the sale of plants. Mrs. Phoebe Hearst is a model farmer, and spends her money and talent freely. She has preserved and beautified the wharf at an expense of more than $10,000. She directs the superintendent as to the vegetable garden that supplies the table maintained for the attendants, advises about the deer park that hangs on the hill's edge over the Potomac, and otherwise acts as a beneficent power all about the premises. She took a practical view of the herd of Jersey cattle that browsed around, and when they failed to keep the old-fashioned milkhouse as well supplied as necessary she had them sold and a pretty herd of Guernseys driven in.

In the spacious old kitchen where things run riot, the traveler buys either a glass of milk or a picture to carry away as a souvenir. Somehow, one can't help but feel that even the kine belonged to Washington, because they browse on his plantation.

ONE DAY BEHIND SCHEDULE.

Boston Business Man Wanted to Take Time to Catch Up.

Several years ago, when the University of Chicago held its decennial celebration, John D. Rockefeller was its guest for several days. A bewildering succession of functions followed one another in such quick succession that each affair was from one to four hours late.

At the great banquet on the closing day, Mr. Rockefeller, in his after-dinner speech, told the following story:

"I have felt for the past 24 hours like the Boston business man who lived in the suburbs and came in to his office every day. One winter afternoon he took the train for his home, but a terrific snowstorm was raging, and about half way to his suburb the train was snowed in. All night the passengers were imprisoned, but early in the morning they managed to reach a near-by telegraph station, and the Boston man sent the following dispatch to his office:

"'Will not be in the office to-day. Have not got home yesterday yet."—Montreal Herald.

Used Him as Eraser.

The late Dr. Henry Martyn Field some years ago related at a Williams alumni dinner a rather amusing incident of his freshman days at college. Being only 12 years old when he entered he had not reached the point where the natural friction between the big boy and the small boy ceases and he was at particular feud with one of his fellows, a stalwart country youth fresh from the farm. One day young Field went early to the classroom and put upon the big blockboard a very exasperating caricature of his enemy, with his name beneath. When the aggrieved party saw what had been done he said not a word, but catching up his youthful tormentor, he used him as an eraser and after rubbing out the offensive picture quietly took his seat.

Many Americans Go to Canada.

Consul Harry A. Conant writes from Windsor that the total immigration from the United States into Canada for the four months of the fiscal year —July, August, September and October—was 17,907, as compared with 12,664 for the same period the year before.

Also Gives Away Libraries.

James J. H. Gregory of Marblehead, Mass., is a rival of Andrew Carnegie in the giving away of libraries. He has been doing this for years. His libraries are smaller than Carnegie's gifts and are given to small communities, to ministers and educators who cannot afford to purchase them.

Red, Rough, Blotchy Skin

is usually the result of using a cheap, impure soap made from stale fat and alkali cheaply perfumed to disguise the real odor. A good soap costs so little that there is no excuse for buying the other kind. Buchan's Antiseptic soap is not only pure, but it is the only soap that is guaranteed under the new law. Moreover, it contains an antiseptic which protects the skin against disease. Ask your dealer for it. If he does not keep it send his name and address with 18 cents to Buchan's Soap Corporation, New York, who will send you a full size cake.

Patriotic Colors.

"How is the baby, Mrs. A.?"

"Oh, I am dreadfully worried about him. You see, that careless nurse left him too near the steam radiator and he actually turned red."

"Gracious!"

"Then we rushed him out in the cool air and he turned white."

"You don't mean it?"

"Yes, and when we gave him his bath he turned blue."

"Oh, I wouldn't worry over him. He is just a genuine American baby. Hurrah for the 'Red, White and Blue.'"

STILL MORE PROOF

That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Have Cured Even the Most Stubborn Cases of Rheumatism.

"When I was a boy of sixteen," says Mr. Otto H. Rose, a retired grocer, of 1226 Lexington Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., "I met with a serious accident which injured the bone of my head over the right eye. I recovered from the accident to all appearances, but not many years after I began to have intense pains in the injured bone, which came on every year and would last from a few days to several weeks.

"I consulted the doctors who told me that I was suffering from neuralgia. The sight of my right eye was affected, so that at times I could scarcely see out of it, while both eyes watered constantly. During these attacks I was often dizzy from the terrible pains. The pains came on every morning and passed away in the afternoon. I never suffered from the pain at night.

"I tried without success to get relief until a friend told me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I had taken a few boxes I felt the pain growing less intense and in a much shorter time than I had hoped for I was entirely cured. I have recommended the pills to several persons, who have used them with good results.

"My wife uses Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for nervous headaches and finds them the best medicine she has ever used as they give relief where all others fail."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

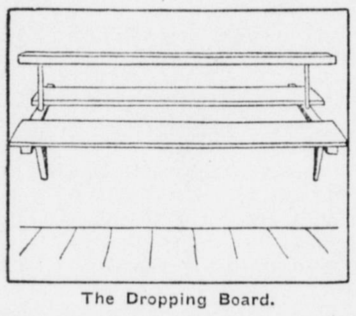
An instructive booklet, entitled "Nervous Disorders," will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

POULTRY AND BEES

DROPPING BOARD.

Arrangement made Which Makes a Lighter and Cheaper Affair.

Instead of a solid platform, or "dropping board," beneath the roosts, use two fairly wide boards in front of and behind the roost, as shown in the cut.



The Dropping Board.

They will catch practically all the droppings, and each board can be carried out and emptied when desired; or a basket can be placed on the floor directly beneath the opening between the boards, and with a hoe the droppings on one board can be shoved off into the basket and pulled forward into the other. Having two boards, and these loose, remarks Farm Journal, makes it easier to guard against vermin.

GOOD POULTRYMEN.

Some of the Ways in Which They May Be Known.

It is never difficult to judge a poultryman by the conditions which exist around the yard and houses.

A good poultryman will keep everything neat and clean and provide warm, and comfortable houses, with nice scratching sheds. He will keep only pure breeds, and these he will select carefully and cull out all poor specimens.

He will feed carefully a variety of foods—never too much or too little—and will at all times see that mites do not get any headway in the houses.

He will provide a separate house for the pullets and will never allow them to roost in trees or on fences.

All in all, everything will tell at a glance that he is the man who will make a success.

HEN POINTERS.

It will pay to own a root cutter.

Trap nests expose the fraudulent hens.

Fatty meat should never be fed laying stock.

Never undertake more than you can easily do well.

No positively fresh-egg supply needs to go a-begging.

Indifferent care will ruin the capacity of and breed.

Indian Runners are small ducks and prolific layers.

The steady layer is of more value than the phenomenal one.

"Good condition" is measured by both weight and health.

Have an object in view, and then "work strictly to the line."

To market an ailing fowl is, or should be, considered a crime.—Farm Journal.

An illy ventilated poultry house is an abomination in cold weather when the house must be closed to keep out the cold. It is better to let the house be cold than damp, but if well ventilated there is no need of it being either damp or cold.

The drinking water for the fowls should have the chill taken off of it before they can be expected to partake of it freely. They will never lay eggs in abundance if they must drink ice cold water—Journal of Agriculture.

The Need of Grit.

I believe many chicks die during the summer because they do not get enough grit, declares a writer in Farm and Home. The past summer my supply of grit ran out and an unusual number of chicks died of bowel trouble. As soon as I began to feed grit again not nearly so many died.

I make my own grit. I secured a supply of limestone and crushed it to the desired fineness and it gave excellent results. I am a great believer in charcoal for chicks, and, indeed, older birds are all the better for having free access to it. During the past summer I have had excellent results from using only dry feed.

Eggs Exported.

Although the hens of the United States do not produce anything like so many eggs as our own people need, 19,000,000 were exported to Great Britain last year, says Farm Journal. Our British cousins consumed last year more than 17,000,000 pounds of poultry, a considerable portion of which was furnished by the United States. It is therefore plain that the poultry business is not likely to be overdone in the United States very soon.

Country Mud.

Country mud may sometimes be a trifle too deep for comfort, but still it is good, clean soil; while the black ooze on the city streets is a compound of coal dust and pneumonia, sweepings, brick dust and typhoid, besides a hundred other filthy components that cling to shoes and clothing like wax.

THE GULF COAST OF TEXAS

A LAND "FLOWING IN MILK AND HONEY."

Semi-Tropical Climate; Vast Yields of Vegetables and Fruit.

Corpus Christi, Tex., Feb. 12.—The lower Rio Grande Valley is sometimes erroneously referred to as Southwest Texas, and so is ElPaso, but THEY ARE EIGHT HUNDRED MILES APART.

It is Winter in Northern Texas while the Gulf Coast country is enjoying sunshine like that of May.

In fact the Gulf Coast knows no Winter—every month is a growing month.

Texas produces wheat like Minnesota, corn like Illinois, and more cotton than any other two Southern States combined. And no part of this great State surpasses in opportunity and possibilities the Gulf Coast Country and the region down by the Rio Grande.

Artesian water was discovered five or six years ago on the great King Ranch, near Corpus Christi. As time went on the Artesian Belt was extended until it now covers the territory from Robstown, sixteen miles west of Corpus Christi, to Raymondville, and is being extended monthly with every indication that a satisfactory flow will be obtained in all territory not covered by the systems of irrigation on the Rio Grande.

One of the most successful planters on the Rio Grande is Mr. John Closner, who owns six thousand acres near Hidalgo, on the S. L., B. & M. Ry. From thirty-three acres of Bermuda onions Mr. Closner last year (1906) shipped thirty-five carloads of as fine onions as were ever grown. This crop alone netted him $15,000.

Two crops of corn can be grown on the same land each year along the Rio Grande. Rice, cotton and numerous other crops, as well as a great variety of fruit can be grown just as successfully. At a dinner recently given some visitors, a Gulf Coast agriculturist set fifteen (15) different varieties of vegetables before his guests.

A comprehensive book of eighty pages, profusely illustrated and fully descriptive of the Texas Gulf Coast may be obtained by addressing John Sebastian, Passenger Traffic Manager, Room 1, La Salle St. Sta., Chicago, or Room 1, Frisco Bldg., St. Louis.

WORDS DERIVED FROM SPORTS.

Pastimes the Indirect Means of Enriching the Language.

Sports and pastimes of bygone days—and even of the present time—have added much to the English language. "Check," which is said to be "shak," a variation of "shah," has not only come into common speech, but has been the foundation of many other words. A philologist traces to it "the checker board," "the exchequer" and "a checkered career." "A good move" is also probably from chess. "Stoop to" is from falconry. "Take the wind out of her sails" is from yachting; so is "on the wrong tack." "To jockey," "to show a clean pair of heels" are from horse racing.

Fencing has been very fruitful as a source of new words. It gives "a hit," "a palpable hit," to "parry a question," or "fence with it," "a home thrust," "a counter," "to be off one's guard." From pugilism comes "to toss up the sponge," or "to chuck it up." "Put your back into it" is a reminiscence of rowing.

Cricket has given many phrases, of which perhaps "stumped," "I stumped him on that question," is the commonest. "Coming up to the scratch" is probably derived from dueling. "Ay, there's the rub" is derived from bowls, though "a rub on the green" is akin to it.

Hostess' Trade Union.

What is wanted is a hostess' trade union, a powerful combination of society women pledged to maintain their own self-respect, and to extinguish socially any man guilty of the slightest lapse of the courtesy which every woman has every right to expect. The drawback to the formation of such a society lies in the fact that unfortunately being respected neither by men nor by each other most women do not respect themselves either—Ladies' Field.

GUIDES CHILDREN.

Experience and a Mother's Love Make Advice Valuable.

An Ills. mother writes about feeding children:

"If mothers would use Grape-Nuts more for their little ones, there would be less need for medicines and fewer doctor bills.

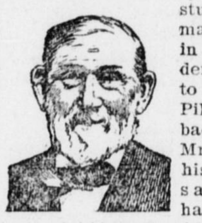
"If those suffering from indigestion and stomach troubles would live on Grape-Nuts, toast and good milk for a short period they would experience more than they otherwise would believe.

"Our children have all learned to know the benefit of Grape-Nuts as an appetizing, strengthening food. It is every evening, with few variations, like this: 'Mamma, let's have toast and Grape-Nuts for breakfast; or, let's have eggs and Grape-Nuts'—never forgetting the latter.

"One of our boys in school and 15 years of age repeatedly tells me his mind is so much brighter after having Grape-Nuts as a part if not all his breakfast." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

WORKS IN THE GARDEN.

Eighty-Seven Years Old, But Has a Sound Back.



Robert Scollan, 87 years old, of 55 Garden St., Seneca Falls, N. Y., a fine, sturdy old gentleman, who works in his own garden, gives thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills for his sound back and kidneys. Mrs. Goetchious, his daughter, says: "Father had a severe attack of kidney trouble and lumbago, which caused him much suffering. He began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and was soon cured. We always keep them on hand. My husband was cured of bad pains in the back by taking only part of a box."

Wonder of Plant Memory.

Plant memory is a problem for the inquisitive botanist, says the Dundee Advertiser. In 1901 a plant allied to the squash and pumpkin was taken to New York from the desert of Sonora, in Mexico, and since then it has been kept—without watering—in a strange climate 3,600 miles from home. During the six weeks of rain in the desert the plant grows its leaves and flowers and perfects its seed. Then it dries up and leaves only a water-filled gourd, which a thick, hard shell seals against animals and evaporation. The transplanted specimen still remembers the rainy season of six weeks. It wakes, sends out rootlets, stems and leaves, and then dries up again until the following year.

NO RELIEF FROM ECZEMA

For Over Two Years—Patent Medicines, Quack Cures, and Doctors Fail—Cuticura Succeeds.

"I was very badly afflicted with eczema for more than two years. The parts affected were my limbs below the knees. I tried all the physicians in the town and some in the surrounding towns, and I also tried all the patent remedies that I heard of, besides all the cures advised by old women and quacks, and found no relief whatever until I commenced using the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent. In the Cuticura Remedies I found immediate relief, and was soon sound and well. C. V. Beltz, Tippecanoe, Ind., Nov. 15, '05."

Henry Clay and Lew Wallace.

"Mr. Clay was of a personality once seen never to be forgotten. Tall, slender, graceful, he had besides the air majestic which kings affect, imagining it exclusive property.

"Throughout Mr. Clay's performance my eyes scarcely left his countenance, which, as he proceeded, sank from sight until, by the familiar optical illusions, nothing of it remained but the mouth, and that kept enlarging and widening until it seemed an elastic link holding the ears together. Indeed, at this late writing, my one distinct recollection of the man and his speech is the mouth and its capacity for infinite distension."—Autobiography of Lew Wallace.

Like many other monarchs of trade, William Whiteley, the London merchant who was murdered recently, was born on a farm. It was his boast that he stood ready to fill any order, no matter how unprecedented. A story is told of two army officers who went into his great London store and one of them asked for six elephants. They were forthcoming and the man who had bet they wouldn't be there paid, though it turned out that the winner had arranged with Whiteley in advance.

THREE EPOCHS IN A WOMAN'S LIFE

MRS. ELVA BARBER EDWARDS MRS. GEORGE WALTERS

There are three critical stages in a woman's life which leave their mark in her career. The first of these stages is womanhood, or the change from a care free girl to budding womanhood, The second is motherhood, and the third is Change of Life.

Perils surround each of these stages, and most of the misery that comes to women through ill health dates from one or another of these important crises.

Women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs has carried thousands of young girls over the critical period of puberty, has prepared mothers for childbirth, and in later years carried them safely through the change of life more successfully than any other remedy in the world. Thousands of testimonials from grateful persons, two of which are here published, substantiate this fact beyond contradiction.

Mrs. George Walters of Woodlawn, Ill. writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"I feel it my duty to tell you of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me in preparing for childbirth. After suffering and losing my children a friend advised me to try your valuable medicine, and the result was that I had very little inconvenience, a quick recovery and as healthy a child as can be found anywhere. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a blessing to all expectant mothers."

Mrs, Elva Barber Edwards of Cathlamet, Wash., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"I want to tell you how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carried me through the critical period of the Change of Life without any trouble whatever, also cured me of a very severe female weakness, I cannot say enough in praise of what your medicine has done for me."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Walters and Mrs. Edwards it will do for other women in their condition. Every suffering woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life,

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and helpful.

Mr. Norie recently purchased an interest in a large and well established lumber manufacturing firm. Mr. Norie was for several years connected with C. B. Sailors' Side Lines.

"Every sailor has a side line," he said. "Many an old shellback makes more out of his side line than out of punching sails and chewing ropes. Watch 'em come aboard for a long voyage. Here's one with a camera, plates and developer. He'll snapshot spouting whales, icebergs, porpoises, wrecks, anything of interest that turns up, for such pictures sell to magazines and newspapers, and he'll photograph his mates at so much a head. Here's a man with $5 worth of fine wool. He'll knit it all up into ladies' shawls during the voyage. With his skillful work he'll change it into $50 worth of wool. The tattooed chap has a chunk of ivory. He'll carve it into little ships. He's very handy that way. The bow legged feller darns stockings and patches clothes. The cross eyed one shaves and hair cuts. As for me, I run a lottery."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Potato.

The common potato was at the time of the discovery of America in cultivation from Chile, to which it is indigenous, along the greater part of the Andes as far north as to New Granada. It was introduced from Quito into Spain about 1580 under the name of "papa," which in Spanish it still bears. From Spain it found its way to Italy, where it became known as "tartuffalo," and thence was carried to Mons, in Belgium, by one of the attendants of the pope's legate to that country. In 1588 it was sent by Philippe de Sivry, governor of Mons, to the botanist, De L'Ecluse, professor at the University of Leyden, who in 1601 published the first good description of it under the name of "Papas peruanorum," and stated that it had then spread throughout Germany. Recommended in France by Caspar Bauhin, the culture of the tuber rapidly extended in 1592 throughout Franche Comte, the Vosges and Burgundy. But the belief becoming prevalent that it caused leprosy and fever, it underwent an ordeal of persecution from which it did not recover until three-quarters of a century afterward.

Telephones and Competition.

Every community which has a telephone service is likely to be confronted by the question of granting a franchise to a rival company. Each case must be decided by the governing circumstances, but every case will show the peculiarity of the telephone problem. The telephone is a natural monopoly, for it is to the advantage of every subscriber that all users of telephones should be on the same system with him. More than one system means that a subscriber must have more than one instrument, or be out of communication with part of the world of telephone-users. It is difficult, however, to adjust human nature to ideal mechanical conditions. Established companies, without rivals, lack the motive of competition to keep rates down and service good. Therefore some communities have welcomed new companies which promised better and cheaper service. Dual systems, like labor strikes, are on their face economic losses, yet it may be worth while to endure the temporary discomfort and loss in order to secure better conditions ultimately. The butcher may be on one system and the baker on another, yet low rates may bring two instruments within the previous cost of one, and may so increase the number of subscribers within call as to atone for the inconvenience. If finally one company absorbs the other, the community may have become so well established in low rates that the surviving company dare not raise them. On the other hand says the Youth's Companion, the effect of competing companies is sometimes merely to divide the telephone-users of a community without adding many to the total number, and if the companies then make an agreement to keep rates up, the community is worse off than before. In the strategical game which a community plays with public service companies, it is difficult to determine in the case of the telephone service how far the actual or threatened establishment of a rival company stimulates mechanical improvement and checks the natural tendency of a monopoly to extortion. No community can settle the question without careful study.

The inhabitants of an industrial town seeking to abandon it in a body—a strange event for modern times—is now to be witnessed in Spain. The town is that of Bejar, near Salamanca, whose people are using their utmost endeavors to have themselves distributed—men, women and children—among the South American republics. Bejar was once a flourishing town, with a reputation for its cloth fabrics. Fifty years ago the population numbered 22,000 people, but the place has gradually declined, and today contains no more than 9,000 souls, who seek to flee from it as fast as they can.

The internal revenue commissioner is overwhelmed with letters from farmers asking whether the manufacture of denatured alcohol on a small scale is profitable. It has been necessary to print a circular explaining that the manufacture of alcohol requires expensive machinery, that a separate bonded warehouse will be required at each factory, and therefore only those who have a considerable capital will find it profitable to go into the business.

The latest novelty in bazaar attractions is surely that introduced by the Springside Wesleyan chapel, Rawtenstall. A wedding cake was cut up, and in one section was concealed a marriage certificate. It was announced that the bachelor or spinster securing the "chunk" containing the document had the opportunity offered to be married free of cost within the next 12 months by the Rev. J. Bennetts

Brander Matthews consoles himself for the president's desertion of the spelling cause by the fact that at present there are 11,000 signatures to the agreement to use the committee's simplified forms, and they are coming in at the rate of 1,000 to 2,000 a month.

WORLD'S MILCH COW

AMERICA DRAINED FOR BENEFIT OF FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

Enormous Sums Sent Each Year by Foreign Born Wage Earners in the United States to Their Relatives Abroad.

The extent to which the American milch cow is drained for the benefit of foreign countries is made the subject of an interesting editorial in the New York Tribune of Jan. 18. It would certainly seem that she is furnishing milk for all creation in increasing quantities. The American Economist has already shown that in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, the huge sum of $363,047,867 went out of the United States in the shape of postal money orders payable abroad, and that the total of such orders issued in the seven fat protection years, 1900 to 1906, inclusive, was $249,148,082, against a total of $112,586,585 for the eight leaner years from 1892 to 1899, inclusive, years made leaner by free trade tariff legislation. Attention was also drawn to the fact that with the addition of money mailed in registered letters, in express money orders and in bank drafts of small amounts the total sent back to Europe by our foreign born wage earners would probably not fall far short of $100,000,000 in 1906.

From figures published by the Austro-Hungarian Colonial society it appears that in 1903 the remittances of Austrians and Hungarians settled in America amounted to $33,000,000, while the gross value of Austro-Hungarian exports to America in the same year amounted to only $9,000,000. It thus falls out that the poorly paid workers of continental Europe yield a far greater profit to their former home countries after emigrating to the United States than if they had never emigrated.

It is, moreover, true, as the Tribune points out, that a considerable percentage of our immigrants remain in this country only long enough to accumulate savings that will enable them to go back and spend the remainder of their lives in the mother land. All told, the money remitted abroad and the money carried abroad by returning wage earners must amount to a rather formidable sum each year.

This sum must then be added to the already great bulk of our foreign fixed charges, such as payments to foreign steamship companies for carrying American passengers and freights, estimated at $200,000,000 a year, the interest and dividends on foreign investments in the United States, and the sums spent abroad by American tourists. When all these items of outgo are footed up they reach a total so great as to seriously affect the question of national debits and credits. They demonstrate the absolute necessity of protection trade balances averaging $500,000,000 a year, representing our excess of exports over imports.

If we bought where we sold, as the free traders and "reformers" would have us do; if we entered upon the system of increasing our foreign trade through the acceptance of larger imports in payment for our exports; if, for example, our $1,750,000,000 of sales abroad were canceled by $1,750,000,000 of purchases abroad, how would we then meet our foreign fixed charges of at least $400,000,000 a year? We could not meet them except by running into debt deeper and deeper through bond issues to cover annual deficits.

As the case now stands, our protection trade balance is ample to take care of our foreign liabilities and leave something over with which to buy back American securities held abroad. Instead of going deeper into debt, as would inevitably be the case if we did not restrict competitive imports by a protective tariff, we are gradually paying our debts owed abroad, while at the same time enormously increasing our wealth at home.

The Tribune proposes no remedy for the heavy outflow of American money in the form of remittances abroad by wage earners of foreign birth. Nor do we know of any way to prevent foreigners from coming here and earning big wages and sending them back to Europe, unless it be by restricting immigration or prohibiting it altogether. In the present condition of the labor market, when three jobs are looking for two men, that remedy does not seem feasible.

Yes; there is another remedy. Revise the tariff downward; approach a free trade basis; reduce prices of commodities; reduce wages, and the $100,000,000 of annual remittances abroad by American wage earners will rapidly dwindle to one-quarter of that sum, or less. The tide of immigrants seeking work will also fall away. But that, too, is a remedy which all excepting free traders and "reformers" will shrink from applying. So it would seem that the American cow must continue to give milk to all mankind. Fortunately, through protection to American labor and industry, the cow has enough and to spare.

It is argued that the country is so prosperous that it is a bad time to put forward the tariff as an issue in politics. There need be no trouble about that. Let a general tariff agitation be started and that objection will not last long.—Portland (Me.) Express.

When the tariff is revised some years hence will southern senators and representatives vote for a lower duty on cotton manufactures?

REPORT THE OUTLOOK RIGHT.

Continued Prosperity Certain Without Tariff Reform.

The president of the largest bank in the Middle West writes to the New York Times that "the prospects for another year's prosperity are as good as they were a year ago." That seems to be the general judgment of competent observers. With few exceptions the men whose fingers are constantly in touch with the financial pulse of the country are agreed that there is nothing in sight to indicate a slump in the present conditions which make for prosperity.

Would this same confident belief prevail if the congress and administration elected in 1904 had been pledged to tariff revision downward, and if that congress were now, in the closing weeks of its tenure, actively engaged in revising the tariff schedules to meet the demands of "progressives" and "reformers?"

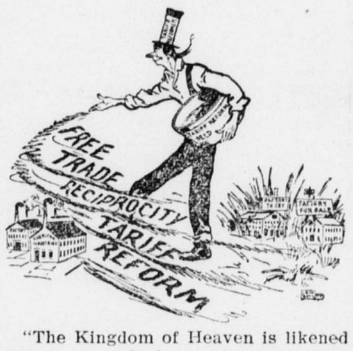
Would the banks continue to lend money as freely as ever? Would business enterprises keep on enlarging and expanding?

There is but one answer to this question. The banks would not be calling in their loans, reducing their lines of discounts and adding to their unemployed reserves, just as they were doing in the early months of 1893, when tariff revision downward was absolutely assured, in anticipation of trouble sure to come. Business enterprises would halt in consequence of a money supply kept inside of vaults. Constriction, not enlargement, would be the rule.

It is fortunate for the country that the party which carried the presidential and congressional elections in 1906 was not pledged to tariff revision downward and that by agreement of the heads of that party tariff revision cannot come sooner than the spring or summer months of 1909. It may not come then. It should not come then if present conditions continue during 1907 and 1908. But, in any event, the country feels safe from tariff tinkering for at least two years to come, and bank presidents can continue to say that "the prospects for another year's prosperity are as good as they were a year ago."

It is true that a revision in tariff would cause a serious fluctuation in the money market, and that there would probably be an uncertainty of affairs such as we would not like to stand after such a glowing period of prosperity—Shoe and Leather World

WHILE MEN SLEPT.



"The Kingdom of Heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field; but while men slept his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way."—Matt. xiii, 24, 25.

President and Tariff.

If the president had desired to open the tariff question he would not have hesitated to do so in his recent message. But we find one of the longest messages on record without a mention of the word tariff. One paper, the Des Moines Register and Leader, is of the opinion that the president suppressed his tariff views because of fear that some one would thwart his other reforms if he opened the tariff. This is the most ignoble motive that has so far been attached to any one of the president's acts. Mr. Roosevelt is not that sort of a coward. The paper in question simply makes him appear as a coward in order to maintain its own contentions on the tariff.—Cedar Rapids Republican.

A Useful Sign Post.

With manufactured exports amounting to $700,000,000 in 1906—more than twice the value ten years ago under a tariff revised downward with the double intent of reducing prices at home and of enlarging our sales abroad—the trade congress which assembles in Washington next week will start with a substantial basis to work on. The business captains who are to consider means for extending the foreign trade of the United States need fall into no error as to whether or not tariff revision downward is the right road to the end sought. The $700,000,000 of exports for 1906 ought to be a pretty good sign post.

Not Careful as to Facts.

If the opening chapter of Miss Ida M. Tarbell's serial on "The Tariff in Our Times," which appears in the December number of the American Magazine, is indicative of the spirit and purposes of the whole work, its measure may be taken without awaiting additional installments. Miss Tarbell is evidently a thoroughgoing "progressive." She displays about as much affection for the American system of protection as the average tariff ripper cares to confess. Her purpose is evidently to arouse and intensify popular feeling against protection, and in doing this she is not always careful as to her facts.—Des Moines Capital.

1907 is a stand-pat year.

THEY YIELD.

Schmitz & Co. Back Down on School Question.

AN EXCLUSION BILL

Will be Given Every Aid by the President, Even to Calling an Extra Session of Congress.

Washington, D. C.—The San Francisco school controversy, growing out of the segregation of the Japanese school children in that city, has been settled. The basis of the agreement reached at the White House conference Friday is that Mayor Schmitz and the members of the school board will, immediately after the passage of the immigration bill as reported by the conferees in congress, abolish the Oriental schools and again admit Japanese children into the white schools. The president and Secretary Root gave the San Franciscans assurance that if the bill is not passed at this session of congress an extra session will be called immediately after the adjournment on March 4.

San Francisco, Cal.—The Japanese and Korean Exclusion league, reinforced by many civic bodies, opposes what it terms temporizing on the part of Mayor Schmitz in the Japanese school question. Officers of the league demand that the mayor hold out for an exclusion law as severe upon the Japanese as that which now applies to the Chinese.

President Tveitmoe informed Mayor Schmitz by wire that Secretary Root's reported amendment to the immigration bill is unsatisfactory to the league members.

A BLOW TO REBATERS.

A Federal Judge Delivers a Decision of Much Importance.

New York.—Judge Holt in the United States court Friday handed down a decision overruling the demurrer interposed by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railway Co. to the indictments returned against it last summer, charging the company with having granted rebates to the American Sugar Refining Co. on shipments between New York and Buffalo.

United States District Attorney Stimson regards the ruling in this case as a decisive victory for the government, inasmuch as it disposes of a number of points that might be raised in the future by corporations against federal indictments alleging similar violations of the Elkins act.

It is believed Judge Holt's decision will enable the government to at once institute proceedings against other corporations hitherto believed unattackable and immune from prosecution. This belief is based upon the action of Judge Holt in overruling the claim of the defense that the indictment was void because of duplicity. In this connection Judge Holt held that the Elkins act supersedes to a certain extent the so-called Hepburn act. He finds that the proceedings were properly brought under the Elkins act.

Judge Holt's decision is based on the fact that the Hepburn act does not expressly provide that the repeal of the Elkins act should release or extinguish liability incurred under the Elkins act.

BUSINESS BAROMETER.

A Liberal Demand for Goods for Spring Trade Is Noticed.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Despite holiday and weather interruptions the volume of business is well maintained. In most sections of the country the movement of merchandise has resumed normal proportions, snow blockades being removed, but tardy deliveries still cause much complaint, especially in regard to grain. Retail stocks of winter goods were satisfactorily depleted during the period of low temperature, and the new season will open under favorable auspices.

Wholesale and jobbing houses report a liberal spring demand, particularly in dry goods, while at the interior there is a vigorous movement of agricultural implements and other farm supplies. A gratifying feature of many reports is the greater promptness of mercantile collections. Mills and factories have so much forward business that new contracts are not taken except at full figures, and there is dissatisfaction because shipments are not more prompt.

Congress.

Washington.—On the 15th the house passed the naval appropriation bill, carrying $96,000,000. The senate devoted its session to debate on the conference report on the immigration bill, which includes the provision intended to settle the California-Japanese question.

Killed by a Dynamite Explosion.

Lebanon, Pa.—Mrs. Zeller, wife of John Zeller, of Annville, was killed by an explosion of dynamite at her home Friday and their two children, Lydia, aged 13 years, and Mary, aged 5 years, were so badly burned and lacerated that there is little hope of their recovery. The house was wrecked.

A Battle in Morocco.

Tangier, Morocco.—The sultan on Friday stormed the village of Bedadua and had 15 men killed in the operations.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

Next, turning from the window, I fell to examining my fellow passengers, in the hope of seeing some one I knew. Conversation on trains makes short journeys. . . . I sat up stiffly in my seat. Diagonally across the aisle sat the very chap I had met in the curio-shop! He was quietly reading a popular magazine, and occasionally a smile lightened his sardonic mouth. Funny that I should run across him twice in the same evening! Men who are contemplating suicide never smile in that fashion. He was smoking a small, well-colored meerschaum pipe with evident relish. Somehow, when a man clenches his teeth upon the mouthpiece of a respectable pipe, it seems impossible to associate that man with crime. But the fact that I had seen him selecting a pistol in a pawnshop rather neutralized the good opinion I was willing to form. I have already expressed my views upon the subject. The sight of him rather worried me, though I could not reason why. Whither was he bound? Had he finally taken one of Friard's pistols? For a moment I was on the point of speaking to him, if only to hear him tell more lies about the ten of hearts, but I wisely put aside the temptation. Besides, it might be possible that he would not be glad to see me. I always avoid the chance acquaintance, unless, of course, the said chance acquaintance is met under favorable circumstances—like the girl in Mouquin's, for instance! After all, it was only an incident; and, but for his picking up that card, I never should have remembered him.

Behind him sat a fellow with a countenance as red and round and complacent as an English butler's,—red hair and small twinkling eyes. Once he leaned over and spoke to my chance acquaintance, who, without turning his head, thrust a match over his shoulder. The man with the face of a butler lighted the most villainous pipe I ever beheld. I wondered if they knew each other. But, closely as I watched, I saw no sign from either. I turned my collar up and snuggled down. There was no need of his seeing me.

Then my thought reverted to the ten of hearts again. My ten of hearts! The wrinkle of a chill ran up and down my spine! My ten of hearts!

Hastily I took out the card and examined the back of it. It was an uncommonly handsome back, representing Diana, the moon, and the midnight sky. A horrible supposition came to me: supposing they looked at the back as well as at the face of the card? And again, supposing I was miles away from the requisite color and design? I was staggered. Here was a pretty fix! I had never even dreamed of such a contingency. Hang it! I now wished I had stuck to my original plan, and gone to the theater. Decidedly I was in for it; there was no backing down at this late hour, unless I took the return train for Jersey City; and I possessed too much stubbornness to surrender to any such weakness. Either I should pass the door committee, or I shouldn't; of one thing I was certain.

"Blankshire!" bawled the trainman; then the train slowed down and finally came to a stop.

No turning back for me now. I picked up by suit case and got out. On the platform I saw the curio-shop fellow again. Tramping on ahead, the smell from his villainous pipe assailing my nostrils, was the man who had asked for a match. The former stood undecided for a moment, and during this space of time he caught sight of me. He became erect, gave me a sudden sardonic laugh, and swiftly disappeared into the darkness. All this was uncommonly disquieting; in vain I stared into the blackness that had swallowed him. What could he be doing here at Blankshire? I didn't like his laugh at all; there was at once a menace and a challenge in it.

"Any baggage, sir?" asked one of the station hands.

"No." But I asked him to direct me to a hotel. He did so.

I made my way down the street. The wind had veered around and was coming in from the sea, pure and cold. The storm clouds were broken and scudding like dark ships, and at times there were flashes of radiant moonshine.

The fashionable hotel was full. So I plodded through the drifts to the unfashionable hotel. Here I found accommodation. I dressed, sometimes laughing, sometimes whistling, sometimes standing motionless in doubt. Bah! It was only a lark. . . . I thought of the girl in Mouquin's; how much better it would have been to spend the evening with her, exchanging badinage, and looking into each other's eyes! Pshaw! I covered my face with the gray mask and descended to the street.

The trolley ran within two miles of the Hunt club. The car was crowded with masqueraders, and for the first time since I started out I felt comfortable. Everybody laughed and talked, though nobody knew who his neighbor was. I sat in a corner, silent and motionless as a sphinx. Once a pair of blue slippers attracted my eye, and again the flash of a lovely arm. At the end of the trolley line was a carryall which was to convey us to the club. We got into the conveyance, noisily and good-humoredly. The exclamations of the women were amusing.

"Good gracious!"

"Isn't it fun!"

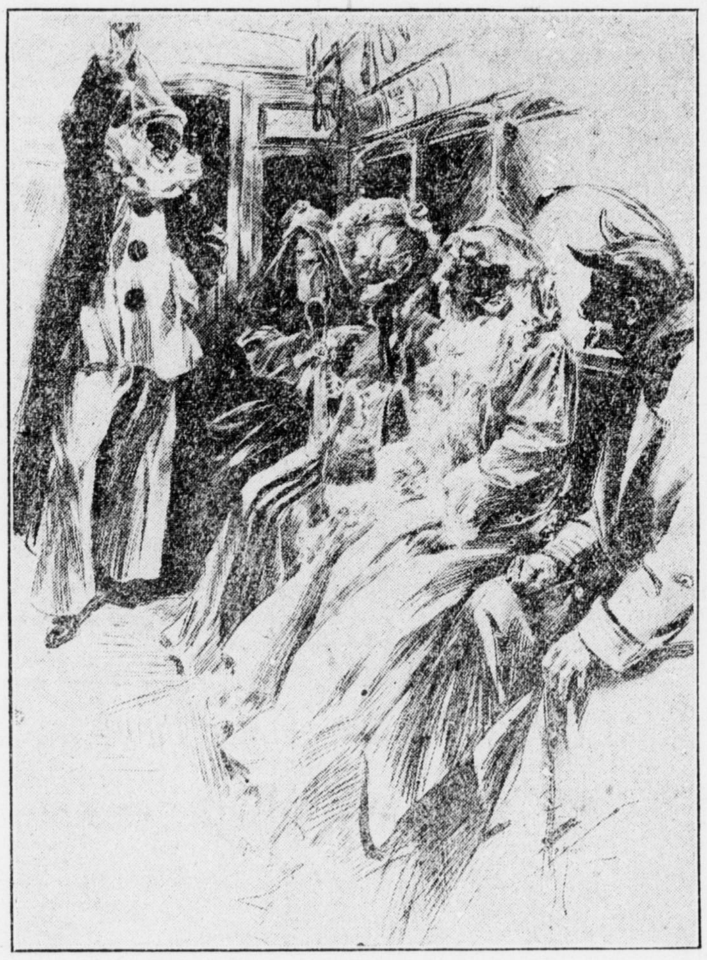
"Lovely!" And all that. It must have been a novelty for some of these to act naturally for once. Nothing lasts so long as the natural instinct for play; and we always find ourselves coming back to it.

Standing some hundred yards back from the road was the famous Hollywood inn, run by the genial Moriarity. Sometimes the members of the Hunt club put up there for the night when there was to be a run the following morning. It was open all the year round.

We made the club at exactly 10:30. Fortune went with me, doubtless it was the crowd going in that saved me from close scrutiny. My spirits rose as I espied Teddy Hamilton at the door. He was on the committee, and was in plain evening clothes. It was good to see a familiar face. I shouldered toward him and passed out my ten dollars.

"Hello, Teddy, my son!" I cried out jovially.

"Hello!"—grinning. Teddy thought it was some one he knew; well, so it was. "What's your card?" he cried, as I pressed by him.



The Car Was Crowded with Masqueraders.

"The ten of hearts."

"The ten of hearts," repeated Teddy to a man who was keeping tally on a big cardboard.

This sight did not reassure me. If they were keeping tally of all the cards presented at the door, they would soon find out that there were too many tens of hearts, too many by one! Well, at any rate, I had for the time being escaped detection; now for the fun: It would be sport-royal while it lasted. What a tale to give out at the club of a Sunday night! I chuckled on the way to the ball room. I had dispensed with going up to the dressing-room. My robe was a genuine one, heavy and warm; so I had no overcoat to check.

"Grave monk, your blessing!"

Turning, I beheld an exquisite Columbine.

"Pax vobiscum!" I replied, solemnly.

"Pax . . . What does that mean?"

"It means, do not believe all you see in the newspapers."

Columbine laughed gaily. "I did not know that you were a Latin scholar; and, besides, you gave me to understand you were coming as a Jesuit, Billy."

Billy? Here was one who thought she knew me. I hastened to disillusion her.

"My dear Columbine, you do not know me, not the least bit. My name is not Billy, it is Dicky."

"Oh, you cannot fool me," she returned. "I heard you call out to Teddy Hamilton that your card was the ten of hearts; and you wrote me, saying that would be your card."

Complications already, and I hadn't put my foot inside the ball room!

"I am sorry," I said, "but you have made a mistake. Your Jesuit probably told you his card would be the nine, not the ten."

"I will wager—"

"Hush! This is a charity dance; no one makes wagers at such affairs."

"But— Why, my goodness! there's my Jesuit now!" And to my intense relief she dashed away.

I carefully observed the Jesuit, and made up my mind to keep an eye upon him. If he really possessed the ten of hearts, the man who kept tally on the cardboard was doing some tall thinking about this time. I gilded away, into the gorgeous ball room.

What a vision greeted my eye! The decorations were in red and yellow, and it seemed as though perpetual autumnal sunset lay over everything. At the far end of the room was a small stage hidden behind palms and giant ferns. The band was just striking up "A Summer Night in Munich," and a monderful kaleidoscope revolved around me. I saw Cavaliers and Roundheads, Puritans and Beelzebubs, Musketeers, fools, cowboys, Indians kings and princes; queens and empresses, fairies and Quaker maids, white and black and red and green dominoes. Tom Fool's night, indeed!

Presently I saw the noble Doge of Venice coming my way. From his portly carriage I reasoned that if he wasn't in the gold-book of Venice he stood very well up in the gold-book of New York. He stopped at my side and struck an attitude.

"Pax vobiscum!" said I, bowing.

"Be at the Inquisition Chamber, directly the clock strikes the midnight hour," he said, mysteriously.

"I shall be there to deliver the supreme interrogation," I replied.

"It is well." He drifted away like a stately ship.

Delightful foolery! I saw the Jesuit, and moved toward him.

"Disciple of Loyola, hast thou the ten of hearts?"

"My hearts number nine, for I have lost one to the gay Columbine."

"I breathe! Thou art not he whom I seek." We separated. I was mortally glad that Columbine had made a mistake.

The women always seek the monk at a masquerade; they want absolution for the follies they are about to commit. A demure Quakeress touched my sleeve in passing.

"Tell me, grave monk, why did you seek the monastery?"

"My wife fell in love with me,"—gloomily.

"Then you have a skeleton in the clothes-press?"

"Do I look like a man who owned such a thing as a clothes-press, much less so fashionable a thing as a family skeleton?"

"Then what do you here?"

"I am mingling with fools as a penance."

A fool caught me by the sleeve and battered me gaily over the head with a bladder.

"Marry come up, why am I a fool?"

"It is the fashion," was my answer. This was like to gain me the reputation of being a wit. I must walk carefully, or these thoughtless ones would begin to suspect there was an impostor among them.

"Aha!" There was mine ancient friend Julius. "Hail, Caesar!"

He stopped.

"Shall I beware of the Ides of March?" I asked, jovially.

"Nay, my good Cassius; rather beware of the ten of hearts," said Caesar, in hollow tones, and was gone.

To be Continued.

Goatskin Imports Increase.

Washington.—Goatskins to the value of $32,000,000 were imported into the United States in the fiscal year 1906, against $10,000,000 worth a decade earlier. These figures were gathered by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor and in making them public it is stated that the only important article of manufacturers' materials showing a more rapid gain is pig tin. Of the importers of goatskins India is the largest contributor, having supplied $11,000,000 worth in 1906.

VERY SHARP STICK.

IT WILL BE USED IN ATTACKS ON TEN RAILROADS WHO IGNORE THE LAW.

MAXIMUM PENALTY ON VIOLATORS OF CATTLE SHIPMENT LAW WILL BE ASKED.

Washington, D. C.—The department of justice, through the United States attorneys in the several states, is about to begin proceedings against a number of railroads for violations of the law relating to the shipment of cattle. This law, which was approved June 29, 1906, provides that cattle shipped in inter-state commerce shall not be confined on cars longer than 28 hours consecutively without being unloaded for feed, rest and water, except in cases where a request is previously made, the time may be extended.

In many of these cases, it is alleged, cattle have been confined on cars without rest, food or water for 50 hours and in some cases 60 hours, and it is the purpose of the government to insist upon the full maximum penalty of $500. Under the old law which permitted no extension of time, the department prosecuted approximately 1,200 cases of violations of the 28-hour law and in each case the railroad pleaded guilty and paid the minimum penalty of $100. The department has concluded that the railroads have had ample notice and will ask the courts for the highest penalty. Following are the names of the railroads against which prosecutions will be begun, together with the name of the city or state where the suits will be brought:

New York, Chicago & St. Louis, at Buffalo.

Santa Fe, in Colorado.

Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, in Nebraska.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, at Chicago.

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, in Kansas.

Big Four, at Cleveland.

Southern Pacific, in San Francisco.

Union Pacific, in San Francisco.

Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, in Buffalo.

Northern Pacific, in St. Paul.

INDICTS HIS GENERALS.

Gen. Kuropatkin in His History of the Russo-Japanese War Tells Why His Army Failed to Win.

Copyrighted, 1907, by the Associated Press.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—Gen. Kuropatkin's "History of the Russo-Japanese War," which was confiscated by the Russian government, has at last become accessible. The work is remarkable for its historic value as the closing chapter of the war from the pen of the commander-in-chief, and for the merciless criticism of the men and measures which in Kuropatkin's estimate swept Russia and its army to inevitable defeat.

The work consists of three volumes respectively devoted to the three crucial events of the war, the battle of Liao-Yang, the battle of the Sha river and the battle of Mukden. The voluminous general orders, statistics and other documentary matter have been collated by Col. Belkhovetoneff, of the general staff. These with the "conclusions" which have been formulated constitute most amazing revelations of disorganization and incapacity, and even of disobedience of specific and urgent orders on the part of certain general officers entrusted with high commands in the field.

Kuropatkin's reasons for the failure of the war are based chiefly on a comparison of the warlike spirit of the Japanese, their preparedness and valor, which he says had never been seen in any previous war, and their ability to maintain the numerical superiority necessary to assume the offensive; with the disadvantages of Russia owing to the inadequacy of the single track railway from Europe in feeding her fighting strength; with commanding officers disobeying orders and in a hopeless state of confusion and cross purposes.

THE THAW TRIAL HALTS.

The Death of a Juror's Wife Causes Delay in the Proceedings.

New York.—Another tragic chapter in the history of the Thaw-White episode was written Thursday when grim death stepped in to halt the famous trial in its fourth week. The wife of juror No. 11, Mrs. Joseph B. Bolton, passed away during the afternoon soon after her husband had reached her bedside. He had been summoned from the court room where the trial had been in progress for less than 15 minutes. The formal announcement of Mrs. Bolton's death was made in court shortly after 2 p. m., the hour set for the afternoon session, and Justice Fitzgerald immediately ordered an adjournment.

Congress.

Washington.—The session of the senate on the 14th was marked by successful filibustering tactics on the part of democratic senators when an attempt was made to force an agreement on the amendment to the immigration bill designed to aid in settling the California-Japanese problem. The house spent the day in debate of the naval appropriation bill.

Charged with Big Embezzlement.

Philadelphia.—Miss Flora Steipel, a cashier in the employ of N. Snellenburg & Co., owners of a big department store in this city, was arrested Thursday on a warrant in which she is charged with embezzling funds of the company to the amount of $25,000.

A Race War in Virginia.

Roanoke, Va.—A race riot is in progress at a railroad construction camp near Thaxton, Va., about 15 miles east of Roanoke, and three or four negroes have already been killed.

CONCERNING PRISCILLA.

Priscilla knows a clever scheme
To bring the men folk to her side.
She drives them single or in team;
For reins, her apron-strings, well tied.
The other girls might sit an hour
In pensive attitude and pose;
But what's the use? They lack the power
Priscilla knows.

Priscilla knows when she should talk,
And then, again, when smiles go best
She never wants to take a walk
When you are tired and would rest;
But, best of all (this is the most Delightful thing to all her beaux),
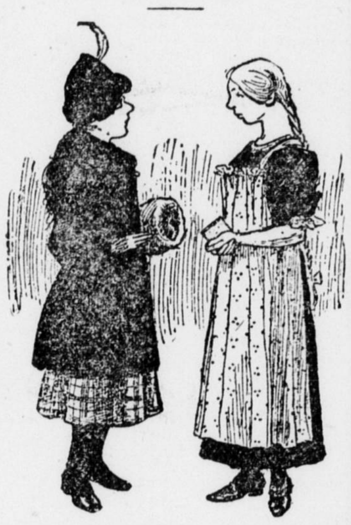
Just how to listen, while they boast
Priscilla knows.

Priscilla knows this thoroughly,
And practices it both night and day;
Yet when she tries that trick on me
The tables turn the other way.
You see, I know Priscilla's plan,
And so I make her talk—which shows
I'm really quite the nicest man
Priscilla knows.

—Jack Appleton, in Judge.

GNATURALLY.



Susy—I say, Jennie, what's a naturalist?

Jennie—I'm not sure. A man who catches gnats, isn't it.—Judy.

What His Bumps Told.

"That man is a phrenologist, Pat."

"A what?" asked Pat, puzzled.

"A phrenologist."

"An', sure, what's that, sorr?"

"Why, a man that can tell, by feeling the bumps on your head, what kind of man you are?"

"Bumps on my head, is it?" exclaimed Pat. "Begorra, then, I think it would give him more of an idea what kind of a woman me wife is!"

None of That for Him.

"Right here," said the architect, who was showing him the plans for an ornamental fountain, "would be a good place to put a gargoyle as a finish.

"That would do for the inside woodwork of a house, all right," said Mr. Gaswell, with decision, "but for an out of door finish I prefer paint."—Chicago Tribune.

Subjects Exhausted.

Little Alice—Oh, dear, I'm afraid if Mrs. Blank don't go pretty soon we won't get our ride with mamma. Ain't her call most over?

Little Dick—I guesso. Mamma is talking about the second girl now, an' there is only the nurse an' the janitor left.—N. Y. Weekly.

Through the Mouth.

"What do you think of that scientist's assertion that the human body contains natural soap?"

"Can't say. But I know there's lots of soap in mine."

"How come it there?"

"Swallowed it in the barber shop."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Gaining Self-Control.

"Your husband looks like a man of great self-control," remarked Mrs. Gadd to Mrs. Gabb.

"Well, he hadn't much when I married him," replied Mrs. Gabb, "but," she added, with a cold-steel look in her gray eyes, "he's getting it."—N. Y. Weekly.

Made Her Tired.

Mrs. Snooper—Men make me tired.

Mrs. Swayback—What's the matter now?

Mrs. Snooper—My husband saw Mrs. Keedick yesterday, and I asked him what she had on, and he replied: "Oh, clothes."

HANKER FOR PASSES

Destitute Legislators Scheming to Restore Relations With Railroads.

CANNOT AFFORD WEEKLY TRIPS

Only Lack of Courage Prevents Passage of Bill to Compel Railroads to Issue Passes to Members and Officers of the Legislature.

(Special Correspondence.)

Harrisburg, Pa.—Many members of the legislature are complaining bitterly over the enormous expense they are under in attending to their duties as legislators. Most of them are obliged to go to their homes every week and the expense of railroad travel while making the journey and of hotel bills while here is fast eating up the $1,500 compensation allowed them by the state. Some of the members have even gone so far as to consider the advisability of introducing legislation compelling railroads to issue passes to members and officers of the senate and house. There is no doubt that such a bill would be introduced if the person presenting it did not fear the ridicule that might be hurled at him, and there is no doubt the bill would be passed if the members could enact it by a viva voce vote.

The state will allow mileage to members for weekly trips home at the rate of two cents a mile if a bill presented by Mr. Miner of Luzerne becomes a law. If a member should get a pass he is not to have mileage. The bill provides that representatives and senators shall be paid on a new basis for their services. They are to receive $20 a day but not more than $1,500 for a regular session or $1,000 for a special session. Every legislator must be present at roll call or he does not get his money. However, he can collect if he is absent on account of illness or on business of the house. He is allowed $50 postage for a regular session and $25 for a special session. A contingent fund of $1,000 is allowed the president pro tem of the senate and the speaker of the house. This bill would have one very good effect. It would be the means of obtaining a quorum at every session. But it would not keep the members in their seats throughout a session. Another $20 a day might be necessary to glue them to their seats.

Still Hanker for Passes.

Such a bill does not go to the spot as a free pass bill would do. Those favoring such a law set forth the argument that if there was such a law members of the legislature could ride free and still would be under no obligations to the railroads. A law of the kind is in effect in New Jersey and it is said to work perfectly satisfactory—to the New Jersey legislators. It is predicted that the pass business will be resumed by the railroads before another legislature meets.

Some very clever arguments were presented by the very clever attorneys of the railroads against the creation of the proposed railroad commission. Now this is one of the platform pledges of the Republican party. However much the Republicans might desire to accommodate the railroads it is difficult to see how such a plank in the platform could be quite ignored.

President George F. Baer, of the Philadelphia & Reading, in a letter to the members of the legislature, intimates that it is not incumbent upon any one to carry out the pledges made by him before the election. Mr. Baer put up quite an argument against the proposed two-cent-a-mile law. His leading argument against a reduction in the fare was that the company needed the money.

Some of these hard hearted legislators are not paying the attention they should to the pleadings of the corporations. Consequently when the corporation measures make their appearance on the floor of the house or senate these independent law makers are going to give somebody trouble.

Powerful Lobby at Work.

The corporations will exert their utmost endeavors on all occasions to have bills inimical to their interests recommitted. Then they will see that they are smothered to death in committee. That is the program and a powerful lobby is at work to carry it out.

The bill reducing Pullman rates was sent back to committee in order to give the Pullman company an opportunity to be heard. The Pullman company also needs the money although a financial statement of the company's affairs showing millions of dollars profits over and above the dividend requirements would not indicate poverty. Mr. McCullagh of Allegheny, who introduced the bill, has gathered quite a bit of data in support of it.

The capitol extension bill has been sent back to committee in order to make some changes in it to conform with the ideas of those who have opposed the purchase of the land to be added to the capitol park. It is proposed to change it in such a way as to prevent speculation on the part of real estate men and others who would endeavor to make money at the government's expense. It is proposed to spend about $1,800,000, which is a little more than one-half of the amount specified in a bill introduced last session. There is not much prospect of the measure going through, however, as the general trend of feeling here is for economy and reform.

Use a little KODOL, after your meals and it will be found to afford a prompt and efficient relief. KODOL nearly approximates the digestive juices. It digests what you eat. It is sold on a guaranteed relief plan." Sold here by R. C. Dodson.

Willie wailed and Winnie wheezed, while wintry winds whined weirdly. Willie wriggled while Winnie wheezed wretchedly. Wisdom whispers, winter winds work wheezes. Wherefore we write. "Use Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup." Nothing else so good. Sold by R. C. Dodson

A Habit to be Encouraged.

The mother who has acquired the habit of keeping on hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, saves herself a great amount of uneasiness and anxiety. Coughs, colds and croup, to which children are susceptible are quickly cured by its use. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and if given as soon as the first symptoms of croup appear, it will prevent the attack. This remedy contains nothing injurious and mothers give it to little ones with a feeling of perfect security. Sold by L. Taggart: J. E. Smith, Sterling Run; Crum Bros., Sinnamahoning.
